Understanding Medicare

Medicare Skilled Services are defined as any care which requires skilled nursing (extensive wound care and care of new enteral feeding devices) or skilled rehabilitation services (physical, speech and audiology, and occupational therapy) that must be performed and supervised by professionals.

More and more hospitals are discharging patients who require skilled care services. These patients normally are too sick to go home but are not sick enough to be in the hospital. Therefore, the choice becomes a nursing facility qualified to handle their special needs. A skilled unit can bridge the gap. Some nursing facilities are not certified through the Medicare program and cannot provide these services for this type of patient.
